PUCO denies Ohio Bell rate boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio denied Thursday a request for early consideration of a $74 million increase in rates by Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

Two commissioners said it would not be fair to consider Ohio Bell's request ahead of those pending at the time of the application of Nov. 6, 1974. Ohio Bell already had an application pending for requests of $216 million a year. No date has been set for public hearings on that application. Ohio Bell serves 4.5

customers in the state, providing about three-quarters of the telephone service. In the application for early consideration, the utility sought to increase the charge for a call from a public telephone from 10 cents to 20 cents; to charge for all directory assistance calls above three a month; replace flat business rates with charges based on usage, and to increase the charges for service con-

The commission noted that it views usage and cost-sensitive pricing policies as "extremely desirable." However, it added that it would require a radical departure from long-standing PUCO practice to consider Ohio Bell's request ahead of other applications.

Crash kills Viet orphans

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The world's largest plane, carrying 243 Vietnamese orphans on a mercy flight ordered by President Ford, crashed in flames shortly after take-off from Saigon today.

U.S. officials said the U.S. Air Force C5A Galaxy transport was carrying a total of 296 persons and that 105 orphans and 19 U.S. Air Force personnel Hospital officials said at least 73 persons were known dead, including 40 orphans, 25 women and eight men. They said 30 others were still trapped in the bottom of the plane.

The plane was to have stopped at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines en route to the United States.

"It was a horrible thing to see," one witness said. "Children were crying while the fire burned."

American rescue workers were dropped from helicopters and waded through the mud trying to find sur-vivors as well as bodies of the dead spread along a mile-long swath.

Debris littered the paddy field and clothing was strewn about. The bodies of some headless children were wrapped in ponchos and put aboard the helicopters that flew them to the

The pilot, who escaped without injury, said decompression problems due to a malfunction in the rear loading door caused the crash. He said he was about 18 miles out from Tan Son Nhut air base when he had to turn back.

The headquarters of the 13th Air Force in the Philippines refused to comment on reports that the plane's departure from Manila earlier today had been delayed by mechanical trouble.

U.S. officials in Washington said it was the first fatal crash of a C5A, which the Air Force has been flying since

Witnesses told Associated Press correspondent Huynh Minh Trinh that they heard two explosions before the plane plunged into a paddy field near a village 11/2 miles from Tan Son Nhut air

The plane skidded through the field and exploded. After the impact, the cockpit was lying about 100 yards from the fuselage and the tail section about the same distance away. A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said the plane carried 243 Vietnamese orphans and 53 adults including the crew, flight nurses and escorts. Most of the escorts were Americans, dependents of employes of the U.S. defense attache's office.

Fire trucks and other rescue vehicles were unable to get the crash site because of the narrow road that could only be traveled by foot.

More than 100 South Vietnamese militiamen were ordered to the crash site to provide security for the rescue operation. American rescuers with sledge hammers and crow bars rushed to the crash site

Spokesmen for both foreign and domestic firms attributed the renewed popularity in imports to lower prices, better fuel economy and a growing belief by American consumers that foreign compunies build more durable cars than the U.S. companies.

"Unlike us, the importers have huge stocks of 1974 models left over to sell at lower prices," explained one U.S. industry analyst. "Not only are the '74s cheaper than the new models, but they're rebating them like we did so we can't touch them in price." Some of the foreign manufacturers introduce their new model cars substantially later than American auto makers.

A spokesman at Nissan Motor Corp. in USA, which imports the popular Datsun from Japan, added, "We figure the domestic rebates in January and February got people thinking about buying cars again."

The children were to have been examined at Clark base, 45 miles north of Manila, and those pronounced fit for the trans-Pacific flight were to have been flown to the United States

The children aboard the first flight were reported to be six to 12 months old. Most of them came from an orphanage operated by the Friends for All Children agency, which has headquarters in Boulder, Colo.

The babies were packed into the plane - 10 of them in seats that normally accommodate three adults on the upper passenger deck; strapped to the floor on the lower cargo deck.

Many screamed in fright as the big plane was loaded. Others slept in the arms of some of the relief workers accompanying them.

The Air Force began flying the Lockheed plane in June 1970, but it has been been plagued by wing cracks and still flies under weight restrictions.

The Galaxy was grounded for a time in 1971 after one of the four engines tore loose as one of the planes was preparing to take off from Altus Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

Thieu regime grabs Ky backers

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) -President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime today reported the second roundup of supporters of former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky on charges of plotting to overthrow Thieu.

The number of persons arrested could not be learned immediately, but they included Nguyen Thien Nhon, Ky's chief assistant.

No action was taken against Ky, who denied he and his supporters were plotting a coup when eight of them were arrested nine days ago. Ky is the former commander of the South Vietnamese air force and lives at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base under the protection of his own security force.

'Ghost' workers probe widened

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Former Gov. John J. Gilligan's deputy campaign manager and a key cabinet member have been subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury investigation on charges that Democratic loyalists got no-show state jobs after the November election.

Smith refused to say whether he would seek indictments in the case, but noted: "The evidence is beginning to stack up.'

State layoffs may bring court fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Layoff of about 530 Transportation Department employes, effective at midnight, may result in court action by the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employes.

Robert J. Shipka, international representative of the AFL-CIO union, told a news conference Thursday a 'possibility" exists that an order will be sought requiring the department to comply with civil service rules.

He said DOT failed to notify the employes 30 days in advance of other vacancies they might qualify for, and did not document a claim that the action results from a lack of work in the Shipka has been seeking to recruit AFSCME members in the department for about the last six weeks, and so far has signed up about 200, he said. He charged further that the layoffs of about 25 AFSCME members established "a clear pattern" that the department wants rid of "key" union supporters.

The union official and several members who attended the news conference questioned other departmental motives, including hardship claims, alleging employes being laid off are being replaced "quietly" through political patronage. They accused DOT of seeking through its leged financial tro $1.6 billion transportation bond issue Gov. James Rhodes wants on Ohio's November ballot.

The bond issue, turned down by the egislature for a place on the June 3 primary ballot, proposes to increase gasoline taxes to finance highway improvements. The union spokesmen appeared before a backdrop sign that asked "Are we being asked to vote for new taxes to get our jobs back?"
Shipka said Victor Goodman of Columbus is counsel for AFSCME, and that Goodman will determine which of 'several alternatives' the union should take. Shipka said a strike "has not been ruled out." He said there will be "some interesting activity" today at DOT's central garage in Columbus, but declined to elaborate.

NEW YORK (AP) - Some early selling on the news of another jump in unemployment kept the stock market in its week-long downtrend today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 5 at its midmorning low point, was off 2.27 at 749.92 at noon. Losers held a 2-1 lead over gainers in fairly quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Continental Telephone was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 1/4 at 111/2. A 105,000-share block traded at

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index lost .17 to 78.97. Hopes for another cut in the bank prime lending rate went unfulfilled when New York's First National City Bank changed its formula for determining the basic rate on corporate loans and held it unchanged at 71/4 per cent for the coming week. Gold issues were sharply lower.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)-The "victory gardens" of three decades ago are back in vogue at Kent State University and two nearby communities but this time in an economic war.

gardens'

come back

Kent State President Glenn A. Olds has parceled out the first of a number of 20-by 30-foot plots the school is making available to faculty and students as an anti-inflation measure.

Barberton, using city-owned land, has 2,500 plots 50-by 50-feet each and has offered them to any resident. Officials report at least 300 already have applied.

Cuyahoga Falls is considering similar action but smaller plots and may give priority to retired persons, officials there indicate. Councilmen William Lowe, Lynn Romesberg and Donald Gault said recently they will introduce legislation to the council soon. City Water Utilities Supt. John Sager already has laid out about 190 plots on 14 acres of city-owned land.

Olds, who plowed a few furrows Tuesday afternoon before turning over the first plot to a student, said he was pleased to be able to implement the proposal he based on President Ford's suggestion that the World War II concept of victory gardens be revived in a war against the rising cost of

"I'm inclined to think that people will not only have some fun but they'll also save enormously in terms of their budget," said Olds, who grew up on an Oregon farm. "I feel badly whenever I see unused land, simply laying fallow."

Kent State will plow and disc the land, lay out the plots and assign them. The tools, fertilizer, seeds, plants, water and "elbow grease" must be provided by the gardeners.

How many times have you heard that question asked? If it was within the last year, chances are I was the one asking, but then again my case is probably an exception. I'll get into that in a paragraph or two, but first I want to introduce myself, since I'll be the one telling you where to go to do the variety of things I've discovered during the past year and a half I've lived here.

My roots, home and family originally stem from Cleveland. This is where I was born and schooled. Now, there's quite a bit to do in Cleveland aside from getting held up, shuffling through the trash on the streets, searching for a clean breath of air (that's kind of a natural pasttime among everyone there), or daring a friend to put his cigarette out in the Cuyahoga River, which has been declared a fire hazard and would probably make the "Towering Inferno" look like a lightning bug in the grass, but I'd rather talk about this area; my new home.

After high school I vacated Cleveland and sought out the green hills of southern Ohio in

I then decided to hit the road, gathered up my two dogs and meager belongings and pointed my van in a westerly direction. Wound up in Los Angeles for the greast amount of time (three and one-half months), but also managed to get as far south as Nogales, Mexico and as far north as Vancouver, British Columbia.

"How?" I worked my way across this great continent in order to keep myself in gas money, doing everything from unloading cow feed off of semitrucks in South Dakota to ditch digging in Phoenix, Arizona; writing for "Term Papers, Inc." in LA. (yes, my friend, you can buy your way through college! A very sleazy organization, very crooked and I didn't last long) and later working in a machine shop but my skin broke out from being covered with grease and oil nine hours a day. I then found myself security guarding boats at Challenger Yachts, Inc., and after that became a maintenance man in an office building in-Long Beach, Calif.

The young actors and actresses involved in Washington Senior High School's play, "Bye Bye Birdie," are now experiencing the above syndrome. It is evident by the tired eves and week smiles and there is concern for the amount of sand remaining in the hourglass.

There seems so much left to do in the four remaining rehearsals, Monday through Thursday of next week and then the apocalypse of the product will explode right out from under their fatigued feet Friday, April 11, at 8 p.m. in the middle school auditorium and again Saturday.

There are sets to finish, lines to polish and dance routines to synchronize, but behind the concerned eyes there is an unbeatable confidence: it will be done and drawing upon this reserve erases some of the apprehension.

"Bye Bye Birdie" will be and it will be dynamite!

The musical comedy revolves around a dilemma which finds Conrad Birdie, renown rock star (portrayed by Tim O'Flynn), drafted and his agent, Albert Peterson, (played by Brian Connell) frantically trying to pay off a $50,000 contract which Birdie holds on a future engagement conflicting with Uncle Sam's plans.

Albert does find a solution, but it becomes a long row to hoe before everything turns happily ever after and getting there is all the fun!

Emily King is tuning vocal chords, while Charles Shaffer is tuning the orchestra for the play. Carmen Johnson is showing the dancers what stepping lightly is all about and Helge Doppleb is appropriately clothing the players, while Kathy Lee is applying

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Association of Broadcasters' annual convention starts next Monday in Las Vegas, Nev., with a proposed two-hour "family" nighttime viewing plan a major topic on the agenda.

Although NAB sources think the plan will be approved by the NAB's television board of directors Tuesday, modifications in it could come from suggestions made to the board by non-network television stations.

The proposal, which would go into effect in September, urges the three networks and 415 stations subscribing

Playground project eyed

MILLEDGEVILLE - The Jasper Parent-Teacher ganization has undertaken a project to improve the playground and has set April 24 as the date for the school recognition dinner.

Stone has been delivered to level the school playground, and the PTO will soon be purchasing a new piece of playground equipment. A committee has been assigned the task of determining which equipment would be most beneficial, and the purchase will be made with part of the $849 which is currently in the PTO treasury.

The organization's guest speaker at their March meeting was John Young, executive director of the Boy Scouts for this area. He addressed the group on the responsibilities of sponsoring a Cub Scout pack, and PTO members decided they would like to do so.

The PTO has also considered organizing a Little League program for children seven through nine years of age. Whether or not the club will sponsor such a program if there is sufficient interest.

A carry-in dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. April 24. The PTO will provide meat and beverages, and immediately following dinner outstanding students and teachers will be recognized.

Two teachers, Miss Marie Kelley, Mrs. Dorothy Harvey, will attend a three-day workshop in Columbus. The expenses will be borne by the PTO and the school activity fund.

Mrs. Lee Marshall, music instructor, directed the kindergarten students which entertained the group with

It defines the family viewing period as "the first hour of network enertainment programming...and in the immediately preceding hour" when local stations do their own programming thing.

The period generally would be between 7 and 9 p.m. on the East and West coasts, and an hour earlier in Central Time areas.

The proposal came last February after network jawboning by Chairman Richard E. Wiley of the Federal Communications Commission on protecting young viewers from undue TV sex and violence in the early evening hours.

It sounds appealing, but NAB sources say independent TV stations complain it puts them at a programming dis-advantage in competing against network affiliates for two reasons:

network affiliates are the main sources of shows for independent stations. It would be a year or two before network programs made to fit the NAB's proposed "family" viewing period became available to independent —The "general family" provision would restrict competitive program-ming by independents and compel them to air basically the same kind of programs shown by network affiliates during the "family" period.

NAB officials say only 20 of the 415 code are independent stations. James Terrell, a top executive of one of those 20 stations, says he's going to make their concerns about the proposed "family" plan known to the NBA's TV board when it meets in Las Vegas next Tuesday. "It doesn't necessarily mean we're against the proposal," said Terrell, general manager of KTVT serving Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex. "We just want to acquaint them with some of the problems independents face on future program sources and so forth.'

Nun lets nothing stop her in teaching jail classes

knows no bounds. She was once in an automobile accident on the way to class. A young woman passerby pleaded with the nun to go to the hospital, but Sister Mary Denise said, "No way, I've got to get to class. Those fellows are depending on me."

But she relented. At the hospital she learned she had bruised her intestines and should see her own doctor for treatment.

Sister Mary Denise kept putting off the visit.

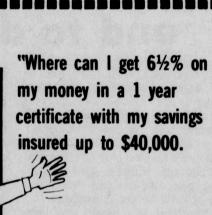

"I had two boys at the jail who were going to be sentenced," she said. "I wanted to be there when they went to Mansfield so I could say goodby."

She eventually landed back in the hospital, but she added, "If I had known how many tests they were going to run I wouldn't have come.'

A member of the Sisters of St. Joseph convent in Cleveland, Sister Mary Denise has been a teaching nun for 32 years. At the Medina County Jail, she instructs inmates in English, math and

Her students seem to regard her highly. One prisoner spent eight hours fashioning a crucifix for her out of metal notebook binders.

"His fingers were covered with blisters when he finally finished," she said. "I wouldn't take a million dollars

More gas available to customers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Commercial and industrial customers of Columbus Gas of Ohio Inc. have begun receiving more of their normal supply of natural gas.

But company officials said those customers faced a penalty if they went over their current allotment.

Columbia said commercial customers would get 85 per cent and industrial customers 70 per cent of their normal supply during the period April 1 to Oct. 31.

The penalty system calls for a $10 charge for each 1,000 cubic feet of gas used over the limit.

Columbia officials said they don't expect many of the affected customers to be penalized.

"During the winter curtailment. almost everyone cooperated," a Columbia spokesman said.

Columbia's 1,561 commercial customers were limited to 60 per cent of their normal allotment while 1,380 industrial customers were cut back to 45 per cent from Nov. 1 through March

The curtailments were authorized by the Public Utilities Commission of Columbia said the penalty is necessary because the company must pay its supplier for overage.

As the winner of three straight World Series the Oakland A's must be given due consideration—even if they did lose Catfish Hunter to the New York Yankees in one of the biggest steals in baseball history. While their 25-game winner escaped through a loophole in his contract and left the A's one ace pitcher short, they did land Williams, the longtime Chicago Cub slugger.

This gives the A's a real swinger in the middle of the lineup and their potentially best hitting team in history. The figures should add up to another West Division title for the A's, who face only the challenging guns of the Texas Rangers in that group.

The Rangers have one of the best the National League, will be playing in collection of young talent in the majors, including 1974 Most Valuable Player Jeff Burroughs and Rookie of the Year Mike Hargrove. Some of the older talent includes one of the best pitchers around, perennial 20-game winner Ferguson Jenkins, and Davis, one of the best outfielders in the game.

The American League East race might be more exciting— or it might not be, depending on how the Yankees live up to their potential. With the acquisition of Hunter, the American League's best pitcher, and Bonds, one of the best players in baseball, the Yankees would seem to be the team to beat in the East.

The Yankees, who last won the AL pennant in 1964, should gain the Eastern championship in a battle to the wire with the Baltimore Orioles. With the arrival of May and Singleton, the Orioles have an awesome group of hitters and will challenge the favorites for eastern supremacy.

The Milwaukee Brewers and Detroit Tigers won't challenge anyone for anything, but they will have some excitement in their towns with Aaron and Colbert in their respective lineups. Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, will not only give the Brewers punch on the field but at the box office. Colbert, a longtime fence-breaker in one of the American League's coziest parks in River Stadium.

No one's conceding the East pennant to New York, but with the acquisition of Hunter and Bonds, the Yankees have established themselves as preseason favorites. Those blue chippers will join a team that lost the American League East title last season by two games.

Hunter won 25 games last year for the A's and Bonds averaged 30 home runs and 41 stolen bases a season with the San Francisco Giants for six years.

George Medich and Pat Dobson each won 19 games for the Yankees last season and along with Hunter and a bunch of other hard-throwers, in-cluding relief ace Sparky Lyle, give New York's pitching staff the equal of any in the league.

The Yankee lineup includes such good hitters as Graig Nettles, Lou Piniella, Roy White, Bob Oliver, Ron Blomberg and Thurman Munson.

With the addition of such hitters as May and Singleton, the Orioles won't rely entirely on pitching to win pen-

NEW YORK (AP) - Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali will appear in the nation's living rooms in May, but you'll probably have to go to the theater to watch him perform in September.

"The fight is on, the money is up," Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, said Thursday in Chicago about an Ali title defense against Ron Lyle in Las Vegas May 16, which will be shown live on home television by ABC.

"The terms are agreeable and we will sign a contract," said Irwin Rosee, Lyle's manager of record, who added that he had talked with Lyle's business partner, Bill Daniels, owner of the pro basketball Utah Stars.

Ali reportedly will get $1 million and Lyle $100,000. The first home telecast of a heavyweight title fight since Joe Frazier stopped Ron Stander May 25, 1972, will be promoted by Don King Productions, Inc., and Video Techniques, Inc., co-promoters of Ali's title winning performance against George Foreman in Africa last Oct. 30 and his defense against chuck Wepner his banner season of 1973, made it very evident that he's ready to break his string of second place finishes.

He fired a seven-under-par 64 absolutely incredible score under the all-but-impossible playing conditions and established a three-stroke lead in Thursday's first round of the $225,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"That's ridiculous," Johnny Miller said when informed of Weiskopf's score. "Under these conditions, that's absolutely ridiculous.'

The temperature was in the 40s. The wind gusted into the perilous area above 50 miles per hour. One player quit because he said it was dangerous. Part of the scoring system was abandoned because two huge trees appeared ready to topple on scoring headquarters.

Several full-grown pines were knocked down. Limbs and branches were scattered all over the 6,643-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

"I saw one 80-foot pine tree laid out level," said Dave Hill, alone in second after a 67. "If it'd fallen the other way it would have been on the green and they'd have been out there with their little hatchets trying to clear it."

Insights being gained into human allergies

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Allergies are what happens when the body's alarm system goes wrong.

Asthma ... hay fever ... hives ... some headaches ... sudden death from bee stings ... the list of suffering is long, no one has been able to stop it.

But "in the last 10 years we have made a science of allergy. Things are opening up," says Dr. Allen Kaplan of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

Insights have been gained into what happens to trigger allergies like asthma and hay fever, how the body's normal system of handling invading substances or allergens goes awry. And there are better drugs and preventive

But basic pieces of the whole puzzle still are missing, buried in the vast complexity of human biology with all its interdependent mechanisms. Key understandings are elusive, holding back the next big strides against

All this is terribly important to some 35 million or more Americans — one in six — who suffer from one or more major allergies, such as hay fever, asthma, eczema, hives, the allergic kicks from a huge menu of different foods and drinks, reactions to drugs like penicillin, and sometimes fatal reactions to the venom of bees, wasps, hornets and yellow jackets.

Several thousand persons die each year from asthma, and perhaps 2,000 from insect stings and drug reactions, says Dr. Philip S. Norman, director of the allergy division at Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore, Md.

With so many sufferers from allergies, the NIAID yearly budget for research in allergy is only $3.5 million, about 10 cents per sufferer. It was only $2 million in 1970. Private and university funds add a little more.

Allergy tends to run in families, being under some kind of genetic influence. Perhaps, says Kaplan, genetic markers might be found to predict who will react with allergy. Then they might be given earlier protection, and the whole biochemistry of allergies might become better understood. He is head of the allergic disease section, Laboratory of Clinical Investigation, at

The hereditary part has been hard to understand, says Norman. Usually, the allergic people make more than the usual amount of antibodies and immunoglobulins, the carriers of an-

Now, he adds, it is becoming clear that allergic people make more of a particular kind of antibody, called IgE, for immunoglobulin E, identified primarily in the work of a husbandwife team at Hopkins, Drs. Kimishige and Teruko Ishizaka, a few years ago.

The IgE antibodies tend to attach to a particular kind of body cell, known as mast cells, that contain histamine. When an allergen, like pollen, enters the sensitized person's body, the allergen-antibody reaction causes mast cells to release histamine and this leads to the allergic attack.

Histamine, which contracts smooth muscle tissue like that in bronchial tubes and makes blood vessels more permeable, is not the only culprit.

When antihistamine drugs came along to neutralize histamine without providing complete relief, researchers reasoned that other chemicals were also at work. Now, some have been implicated that act like histamine. They include serotonin, bradykinins, and another known as a slow-reacting substance of anaphylaxis.

Thus one intriguing target in research is to find some way to control the body's production of the IgE antibodies, Drs. Norman and Kaplan say. Some moderate level of IgE antibodies appears useful to health, but too many appear harmful.

"An awful lot of research is aimed at learning exactly what happens biochemically when an allergen trips off a reaction," Kaplan says. In asthma, he continues, only one-third of the attacks are strictly of the allergic variety. The nonallergic kind tends to be more severe. So some research seeks to pinpoint what bronchial defects exist to bring on the nonallergic attack. Understanding the chemistry of allergic asthma may help in understanding the nonallergic attacks. Hand in hand with the quest for basic understandings go efforts to improve drugs and to develop treatments for al-

Antihistamines have been effective, but have drawbacks such as making people drowsy. Epinephrine, or adrenalin, and theophyllin have long been used in asthma particularly. But some experts now regard epinephrine as not very effective in dilating bronchial tubes.

A new drug, cromolyn sodium, is a prophylactic or preventive of asthmatic attacks in many chronic asthmatics. It doesn't act directly on the bronchial tubes, but prevents the release of histamine and the other chemicals which do harm.

Cromolyn has to be given before an attack, or before exposure to something, like dog dander, that might induce an attack. It makes it possible for some chronic asthmatics to get along without taking cortisone, or getting by with less cortisone, which can have unwanted side effects, Kaplan says. And it also helps asthmatics who are not victims of allergies.

In ancient Rome, the Emperor Nero proclaimed that only he could wear the purpole, a fabric colored with extracts from murex shellfish. Seafaring Phoenician merchants made the regal dve and grew rich selling purple wool for about $150 a pound, the National eographic Society says.

By ALFRED ARAUJO NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A program to exterminate tsetse flies through the use of sexually sterile male flies is advancing in laboratories in the Tanzanian seaport town of Tanga.

If successful, the project may lead to elimination of tsetse flies on a big scale in countries throughout Africa and open millions of acres of now uninhabitable land to men, agriculture and animals.

The project, a joint venture of the governments of Tanzania and the United States, is based on previous success with the biological control method of wiping out the screw-worm fly, a major scourge of cattle on farms in the southeastern zone of the United States. The plan is to raise 60,000 tsetse flies in the Tanga laboratory. With this "breeding colony," 10,000 male tsetse flies, in the pupa stage, will be sexually sterilized each week by atomic radiation and released among wild tsetse flies. The sterile male flies, when they emerge, would mate with wild females, who reproduce only once in their lifetime. This would result in no progeny from the females, who would become sterile for life. The sterile male procedure, discovered by an American agricultural scientist in 1955, was used with great success to wipe out the screw-worm fly pest in America. A miniature ex-periment with sterile male tsetse flies succeeded in eliminating 99 per cent of the tsetse population on two islands in Lake Karibu in Central Africa $10.00 in the '60s. Sam Mbise, Tanzanian co-manager of the Tanga project, noted that 60 per cent of his country is infested with testse flies.

Tanzania, the world's largest producer of sisal, also grows maize, beans, coffee, sugar, cotton, tea and tobacco. Tsetse flies, which infest 4.5 million square miles of Africa from the Sahara to South Africa, and from coast to coast, are credited with being one of the prime causes of Tanzania's current food shortages. Dr. Loiruk Ilmolelian, chief research officer in the Livestock Development Division of Tanzania's Agriculture Ministry, said the usual ways of tsetse control, consisting of bush control and spraying with insecticide, have serious disadvantages.

He said those methods are costly and time-consuming; they kill insects that are useful to farmers as well as tsetse flies, and tsetses might develop resistance to the sprays.

Rate boost ban urged

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Ohio Public Utilities Commission was asked Thursday by Rep. Ronald L. Mottl, D-23 Ohio, to place a moratorium on utility rate increases. Rising utility rates threaten to cut down the additional spending power created by new tax rebate legislation, Mottl said in a telegram to PUCO.

He also recommended the commission adopt a policy of refusing to approve automatic rate increases under fuel adjustment clauses without a formal hearing.

At such hearings, Mottl proposed, utilities would be required to prove that fuel price increases are unavoidable and rate increases cover only increased fuel costs.

Mottl said Ohioans have paid out an extra $524 million in the past year because of fuel adjustment clauses.

Petroleum reserve monopoly fears eyed by justice aides

Department is investigating whether major oil companies would gain a monopoly on oil in a naval petroleum reserve in California if the government opens it to private production.

The Ford administration has proposed to allow commercial development of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve, which has been maintained since 1942 as an oil stockpile for emergency military use.

As the result of the administration's proposal, a dormant, five-year-old antitrust investigation of California's oil market has been revived and speeded up. Official of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division say they expect recommendations within weeks from their West Coast investigators.

The issue has received relatively little attention in congressional hearings on bills to open up the reserve. But Rep. John E. Moss, DCalif., testifying last week before the House Armed Services subcommittee on investigations, revealed memos and letters documenting the Justice De-

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice partment's concern over the possibility of antitrust violations in California's oil market and the prospect of opening Elk

> Standard Oil of California (SOCAL) is both the operator of the Elk Hills reserve for the Navy and the owner of about 20 per cent of the petroleum reserve. The documents say this gives SOCAL "insider's knowledge" and thus a competitive advantage in any bidding for commercial production.

SOCAL also owns the only major pipeline out of Elk Hills, effectively controlling the flow of oil by any competitors, the documents say.

Keith I. Clearwaters, deputy assistant attorney general for antitrust, said the Justice Department is reviving the antitrust investigation. However, he said last week that the administration proposals for opening Elk Hills would "incorporate antitrust safeguards," including requirements for "full and equal opportunity" for all oil companies to obtain Elk Hills oil.

But Moss said such safeguards are not strong enough.
